California Debt and Investment Advisory Commission

The Legislature established the California Debt and Investment Advisory Commission (CDIAC) to assist state and local government agencies when issuing, monitoring, and managing public debt, and with investing public funds through its research and technical assistance programs. CDIAC also acts as the State's clearinghouse for public debt issuance information.

CDIAC Members Include:

Bill Lockyer

California State Treasurer and Chair

Arnold Schwarzenegger

Governor

John Chiang

State Controller

Dave Cox

State Senator

Ted Lieu

Assemblymember

José Cisneros

Treasurer and Tax Collector,
City and County of San Francisco

Jay Goldstone

Chief Operating Officer,
City of San Diego

Executive Director:

John Decker

Introduction

Acknowledgements

County clerks, registrars of voters, and their staffs provided the information contained in this publication. Commission thanks all the individuals and offices who graciously provided the material.

Constitutional and statutory provisions require voters to authorize general obligation (GO) bonds issued by state and local governments. For bonds issued by the state, the authorization must be made through a statewide election. Local bonds must be approved by voters within the jurisdiction authorizing the bond.

Local governments must also seek local voter approval for levies of certain revenue exactions, and especially taxes. Statewide ballots have included measures to increase or reduce state taxes, as well, under a limited set of circumstances.

Since 1986, after each statewide election, the California Debt and Investment Advisory Commission (CDIAC) publishes a statistical summary and analysis of bond and tax measures appearing on the ballot. This report, the 21st in the series, details the results of local government bond and tax measures appearing on the June 3, 2008 Primary Election ballot. Though no fiscal measures appeared on the statewide ballot, voters in 36 counties considered 77 bond and tax measures.

Voters had two opportunities to consider fiscal measures in primary elections in 2008; the presidential primary in February and another primary for state offices in June. Not since 1940 had California held a presidential primary election on a date separate from the statewide primary election. To give a more complete picture of the 2008 primary results, this report also provides analysis and statistics on the combined results of the February 2008 and June 2008 elections.<sup>1</sup> Though they may not be directly related to the results of the single primary held in June 2006, they provide a measure of comparability to the results of previous years' primary results.

Ms. Nova Edwards compiled the data and prepared the analysis. Mr. John Decker and Ms. Kristin Szakaly-Moore reviewed and edited this document.

June 2008 Primary Election Results

During the June 3, 2008 Primary Election, voters considered 77 local fiscal measures. Thirty-six of these measures (46.8 percent) would have authorized the issuance of GO bonds, and 41 (53.2 percent) would have levied a tax (or assessment). Of the tax proposals, voters considered 28 measures to levy a special tax whose proceeds would be earmarked and 13 measures to impose a general tax (that is, the tax is levied without a specific earmark).

At the election, voters approved 53 (68.8 percent) of the fiscal measures on the June ballot: 27 bond measures, 15 special tax measures, and 11 general tax measures. Figure 1 summarizes the election results by type of measure.

Below, commission staff review details on the bond and tax measures.

General Obligation Bond Measures

Local agencies presented voters with a total of 36 GO bond measures in the June 2008 Primary Election. If voters had approved all these measures, they would have authorized the issuance of $2.3 billion in GO bonds. See Figure 2.

Thirty-three of the 36 bond measures on the ballot would have financed facilities for Kindergarten through community college. Thirty-one of these measures would authorize bonds for Kindergarten through high school (K-12) facilities. Two measures were for community colleges. Local ballots provided one measure each proposing financing for capital associated with recreation, firefighting and hospital facilities. Specifically:

- K-12 Education Facilities. Voters considered 31 GO bond measures for K-12 education facilities and approved 24. They approved issuances ranging in value from $715,000 to $378 million. Under the provisions of Proposition 39 (approved by voters in 2000), many of these bond measures could be approved with 55 percent of the voters, rather than a two-thirds vote. Voters approved 10 bond measures with a margin in excess of 55 percent, but less than 67 percent.

- Community College Facilities. Two GO bond measures proposed financing for community college facilities. Voters approved both measures.
- Recreation Facilities. One GO bond measure appeared on the ballot for recreation facility purposes. This measure, which required two-thirds voter approval, received 75.7 percent of the vote. The funds from the approved measure ($4.87 million) will finance a gymnasium, weight room, kitchen, meeting rooms, offices, softball field, soccer field, and a swimming pool.
- Firefighting Facilities. One measure proposed authorizing $10 million in GO bond issuance to replace aging structures and modernize major equipment. This measure was not approved.

- Hospital Facilities. One measure would have authorized up to $11.5 million in GO bonds to retrofit hospital facilities for seismic repairs. The measure was not approved.

At the election, voters authorized issuing $1.9 billion. They passed 27 (75 percent) measures, authorizing $1.9 billion in GO bonds. See Figure 3.

General and Special Tax Measures

Local governments placed 41 tax measures on the ballot. Twenty-eight measures (68.3 percent) proposed the levy of special taxes, thereby requiring approval by two-thirds of voters. Thirteen measures proposed general taxes and required a simple majority approval. Overall, voters approved 26 tax measures (63.4 percent), as displayed in Figure 4.

The tax measures can be grouped into five categories by purpose: general government, K-12 education, public health and safety, capital improvements, and miscellaneous.

- General Government. Voters considered 13 general government tax measures: five utility users' taxes (UUTs), five transactions and use taxes (TUTs), two transient occupancy taxes (TOTs), and one parcel tax. All but one of these measures required simple majority approval. Voters approved 11 of these measures.
- K-12 Education. Thirteen tax measures proposed levying special taxes for K-12 education purposes. Voters approved seven of these measures.
- Public Health and Safety. Four public health and safety tax measures appeared on the ballot; voters approved two. One finances fire protection while the other finances emergency medical services.
- Capital Improvements. Voters considered two special tax levies, one for street improvements and the other for street lighting. The tax for street improvements was approved by voters while the street lighting measure was not.

Combined Results of the 2008 Primary Elections

The 2008 primary elections presented voters with a total of 139 bond and tax measures. Of these, voters approved 102 (73.4 percent passage rate).

As displayed in Figure 6, 58 of 75 bond measures (77.4 percent) passed. Tax measures had a lower passage rate, with 44 of 64 (68.8 percent) measures winning approval.

Below, the combined results are described according to the measure's purpose, type, and region.

The following 18 counties reported no fiscal measures on their ballots in the combined elections: Alpine, Amador, Calaveras, Colusa, Del Norte, Inyo, Kings, Lassen, Mariposa, Modoc, Plumas, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Tehama, Trinity and Yuba.

Combined Results, by Purpose

Figure 7 combines all fiscal measures presented to voters in the 2008 primaries and displays the following purposes: capital improvements, education, general government, public health and safety, and miscellaneous projects.

The ballots proposed 84 measures for K-12 facilities, by far the largest single purpose. Of these, 64 measures (76.2 percent) passed. Proposals for community college facilities had the highest passage rate: of six measures on the combined ballot, five passed (for an 83.3 percent passage rate).

The following briefly describes the bond and tax measures by purpose. More detail can be found in Appendix E.

Education. Voters were presented with 90 local government education bond and tax measures in the 2008 Primary Elections.

Of the 90 education measures proposed, 71 were for GO bond issuance and 19 were special tax measures. Fifty-six of the 90 GO bond issuance measures received approval (62.2 percent). Thirteen of the 19 special tax measures were approved (68.4 percent).

All but one of the GO bond measures required 55 percent voter approval; the other measure required two-thirds approval. Voters approved 78.5 percent of GO bond measures for K-12 school facilities/programs and 83.3 percent of the measures for community colleges.

General Government. The 2008 Primary Election ballots had 20 general government measures. These tax measures included transaction and use (sales tax), utility user, and transient occupancy taxes. Voters approved 18 measures, five of which will reduce tax rates.

Public Health and Safety. Voters were presented with 14 public health and safety measures on the 2008 Primary Election ballots. Two of the measures were GO bonds, which provided financing for a fire protection district and a hospital district. Both measures required two-thirds voter approval; neither was approved. The remaining 12 measures were special tax measures, six of which were approved. Five of these measures required two-thirds voter approval for passage, and one required a majority vote.

Miscellaneous Projects. The 2008 Primary Election ballots included 12 miscellaneous bond and tax measures for parks and recreation facilities and public libraries. All of the measures in this category required two-thirds voter approval. Seven measures (58.3 percent) were approved.

Capital Improvements. There were three capital improvement measures on the 2008 Primary Election ballots. All three measures required two-thirds voter approval; two measures (66.7 percent) were approved.

Combined Results, by Type

Of the 139 measures on the 2008 Primary Elections ballots, 75 measures (54 percent) authorized the issuance of GO bonds, 44 measures (31.7 percent) authorized the levy of special taxes, and 20 measures (14.4 percent) authorized the levy of general taxes. Voters approved 58 GO bond measures (77.3 percent), 26 special tax measures (59.1 percent), and 18 general tax measures (90.0 percent). Figure 8 summarizes these results.

Below is a brief discussion of the types of measures considered by the voters; Appendix D contains a listing of individual measures by type.

General Obligation Bonds. Figure 9 shows the total volume of GO bond measures by purpose. Proposed GO bond measures on the 2008 Primary Election ballots totaled nearly $6.9 billion. Of this, $6.6 billion was proposed for education-related purposes, $22.0 million for public health and safety purposes, and $190 million for parks and recreational facilities.

Fifty-eight GO bond measures (77.3 percent) were approved, totaling approximately $6.1 billion. Fifty-one of these measures (87.9 percent) were for K-12 educational facilities/programs, five measures were for community college facilities (8.6 percent), and the remaining two measures were for park and recreation facilities (3.4 percent).

Voters approved no GO bond measures for capital improvements and general government.

Special and General Tax Measures. The 2008 Primary Election ballots had 64 local government tax measures. Forty-four measures were for special taxes (mostly parcel taxes); 42 of these required two-thirds voter approval and two required majority approval. Voters approved 24 of the 42 measures (57.1 percent) requiring two-thirds voter approval and both of the measures requiring majority approval.

Twenty of the local government tax measures were general taxes. Voters approved 18 measures (90 percent). The general tax measures included utility users', transaction and use, parcel, and transient occupancy taxes.

Combined Results, by Region

The election results can also be reviewed for regional differences. Staff divided the results into the five regions detailed in Figure 10.

Passage Rate by Region,
2008 Primary Elections

As Figure 11 shows, the Bay Area region approved the greatest number of measures in the 2008 Primary Election (33 bond and tax measures), followed by the Central Valley region (21 measures).

In the 2008 Primary Elections, the Los Angeles region had a passage rate higher than any other region with the greatest number of voters approving (84.2 percent) (see Figure 12). The passage rate of bond and tax measures in the Bay Area region was the next highest (78.6 percent) in the 2008 Primary Elections, followed by the San Diego/Inland Empire region (73.7 percent).

Appendix B contains a listing of individual measures by county and Appendix C contains a listing of measures by region.

Comparison of the 2006 and 2008 Primary Elections

Election results are contextual. How best to compare across elections? Voter turnout and the underlying political environment can have a large impact on the success of certain measures. (Appendix A details the turnout by election and by county.) In the case of fiscal measures on these ballots, it is not clear whether local governments are improving their ability to manage and promote certain fiscal measures. Conventional wisdom asserts that the results of this year's primary election can often be compared to the results of the last primary election.

To compare primary results of 2006 and 2008, staff combined the results of the two 2008 primaries. The success rates in the 2008 primaries may be subject to adverse selection issues, as local governments might have considered whether to place a fiscal measure on a particular ballot depending on if their expectations about the chances for success were greater on the February or the June ballots.

Below, staff compare the results of the elections by voter requirement for the measure, type, region and purpose.

Comparison by the Measure's Vote Requirement

Figure 13 provides a breakdown of the passage requirement for the bond and tax measures appearing on the 2008 Primary Election and the 2006 Primary Election ballots. Measures requiring a majority vote in the 2008 Primary Elections, which were predominately for general government purposes, received more than 90 percent voter approval. The total number of approved measures far exceed the 2006 Primary regardless of the measure's required minimum.

Over half of the 2008 Primary Election measures and nearly two-thirds of the 2006 Primary Election measures required 55 percent voter approval. Most of these measures were comprised of education GO bonds, and received greater voter support than those measures requiring two-thirds voter approval.

A greater percentage of measures requiring a majority vote were approved than those that required two-thirds voter approval. For example, in the February 2008 Primary, all majority vote measures were approved whereas 68.8 percent of measures requiring two-thirds voter approval were passed. This pattern is consistent across all three Primaries.

Comparison by Type of Measure

Figure 14 provides a breakdown of the types of bond and tax measures on the primary election ballots. Measures considered in the February 2008 Primary Election received the most overall voter support (79 percent) compared to 68.8 percent for the June 2008 Primary Election and 50.9 percent in the 2006 Primary Election.

The general tax measures across all three Primaries received the greatest voter support (100 percent, 84.6 percent, and 66.7 percent, respectively). This contrasts with special tax measures that required two-thirds voter approval. These measures received 68.8 percent voter approval on the February 2008 Primary Election ballot, 53.6 percent approval on the June 2008 Primary Election ballot, and 28.6 percent approval on the 2006 Primary Election ballot.

The GO bond measures were comprised mainly of education measures. The majority of the GO bond measures required 55 percent voter approval. There were four GO bond measures on the 2008 Primary Elections ballot that required two-thirds voter approval, and three of those measures passed. In the 2006 Primary Election, two of the five GO bond measures that required two-thirds voter approval passed and the other three failed.

Comparison by Region

A summary of votes by region are provided in Figure 15. The 58 counties have been categorized into five different regions. A few of the measures that appeared on ballots in the other region category spanned more than one county. (See Figure 10, Counties Included in Region, on page 12.)

Overall, voter support was much greater in the 2008 Primary Elections than the 2006 Primary Election. All but one region approved more than half of the measures considered in both Primaries. This contrasts with the 2006 Primary where three out of five regions approved less than 50 percent of the measures. The Bay Area consistently is among the top three regions that has the highest passage rates of bond and tax measures.

Comparison by Purpose

Figure 16 summarizes the types of projects appearing on the Primary Election ballots. Projects that are contained in the other category include public libraries, public health and safety measures (e.g., hospital facilities, fire station facilities, emergency medical services, etc.), and general government.

The category of measures with the highest overall approval rate was education (76.7 percent in the 2008 Primary Elections and 53.8 percent in the 2006 Primary Election). This category includes both K-12 school facilities and community college facilities. The passage rates for community college and K-12 school facilities in the 2008 Primary Elections stand in sharp contrast with the 2006 Primary Election. Over 70 percent of community college and K-12 school facilities measures were approved in 2008; less than 60 percent were approved in 2006.

With the exception of the February 2008 Primary Election ballot, capital improvement measures received the lowest percentage of voter approval—50 percent in the June 2008 Primary and 33 percent in the June 2006 Primary.

Table A

Table A provides a comparison of voter turnout in the three primaries among all 58 counties. Voter turnout for the February 2008 Primary far exceeded that of the two June Primaries. This high turnout likely can be attributed to factors such as the Presidential Primary Election.
